

Who We Are

UCLA is home to more than 12,000 international students and scholars. From the moment they arrive at UCLA, the Dashew Center functions as the central hub to provide international students, scholars, and their departments with visa services, resources, support and advocacy on campus.

Values

At the center of its mission, the Dashew Center aims to serve the entire UCLA community by promoting the values of creating global connection, international understanding and cultural sensitivity.

Services

Our department is divided into four specialized units (F-1 visa, J-1 visa, Employment-Based and Programming), which all work together to support the international community with a variety of services and resources. Our staff serves the UCLA community with essential support, from assisting with visa-related services to providing counseling, and programs & events designed to welcome students and scholars on their journey at UCLA.
