

OPT Employers, 2012-2014 International Undergraduate Students

Background

International student leaders came to the Dashew Center for International Students & Scholars and the Career Center with concerns about possible discrimination in the job market affecting them as they seek career development opportunities through two forms of work authorization: Curricular Practical Training (CPT) and Optional Practical Training (OPT). While the Dashew Center does not have direct information about discrimination in the job market, the center periodically publishes lists of employers known to hire international students, sometimes in collaboration with the Career Center, as resources allow.

The purpose of these lists is to 1) support the job-seeking process for international students by providing lists of employers who have demonstrated their willingness to employ international students, and 2) recognize employers who have hired international students.

The following list is organized by field of study (e.g. the first section includes employers who hired international students from the Humanities & Social Sciences).
